The Protection of Human Rights through Court Litigation in Africa

Seminar, February 6th – 7th, 2008

The project The African Human Rights and Access to Justice Programme, AHRAJ, has been running since 2001, jointly organised by the Swedish and Kenyan sections of the International Commission of Jurists. The purpose is to improve the promotion and protection of human rights at national level in the sub-Saharan African countries. Lawyers and NGOs can apply for funding to process cases of principal importance to the legal development in the country.

The thematic areas of the programme include the right to a fair trial, access to justice, labour rights, women's and children's rights, the right to health and minority rights.

We now invite all interested to a seminar in Stockholm. Lawyers from Kenya, Gambia, Zimbabwe and Uganda, directly involved with the different cases in the AHRAJ project, will present the results and impact of the project.
